In-House Training

---

If you've been thinking about introducing a Scrum or Agile culture to your business, it's a wise move to train and certify your team with in-house (also called "in-company" and "on-site") training.

Choosing to train your team together in this format means that they will have the same level of skill and understanding. Sharing a common approach and language ensures more efficient handling of any project.

Our in-house pricing structure is more cost-efficient than training individually when you have a number of candidates for training.

Why In-House Training?

- You gain date and style flexibility. In-house training can be delivered as classroom or live-virtual training.
- Training is delivered to your team only. We customise the content to incorporate projects and processes relevant to your business.

What's Available?

All of our Agile and Scrum courses are available as in-house training, with some extra options that are not available for public courses. Click on the course name below to learn more about each course.

- ✓ Introduction to Agile
- ✓ Agile Master Certified (SAMC™)
- ✓ Scrum Master Certified (SMC™)
