What is a Scrum Developer?

Scrum Developers are often simply called the "scrum team members". They work on the project to create the deliverables.

They also communicate regularly with the Scrum Master and Scrum Product Owner.

Scrum Developers must have a good understanding of how Scrum works so that they can be actively contribute to the Sprint.

The Scrum Team

Customer

provides requirements to the scrum product owner

Scrum Product Owner (SPO)

- voice of the customer
- prioritises requirements
- communicates with scrum team
- defines criteria

Scrum Master (SM)

- supports & facilitates the scrum team
- creates productive work environment
- oversees application of scrum processes
- clears obstacles that arise

Scrum Team

- Also called "scrum developers"
- Creates the product
- This team will include anyone who has an active role in the development of the product.

What Does A Scrum Developer Do?

A Scrum Developer is a member of the Scrum Project Team.

Scrum Developers create the project's deliverables.

They demonstrate product increments to the Scrum Product Owner during sprint review meetings.

They must have a thorough understanding of Scrum processes and the associated tools to create the project's product or service.
